Dear Sir/Madam,

Democracy is a form of government, a pattern of social life where the participant actors enjoy the full benefit of freedom, equality and liberty. The UN observes that "democracy is a universal value based on the freely expressed will of the people to determine their political, economic, social and cultural systems and their full participation in all aspects of their lives".

India is often referred to as the largest democratic country in the world with more than 800 million eligible voters. The seven decades of Indian democracy makes visible many lacunas, which are not visible a surface reality. Nowadays, in many cases, the practice of democratic principles has not been reached at grass root level. Many of them are still out of the democratic process without any voice. There are some challenges that are still posing questions to democracy like that of defection, fake voting, money power and muscle power during elections. Corruption and economic inequality are eroding the rule of law and impact working of democracy to the detriment of the weak in India. India needs to make its democracy more representative and accountable so that this could lead to substantive democracy for the benefit of the marginalized. The seminar on 'Democracy in India: Issues and Challenges' focusses on various aspects of democracy.

We request you to enrich the debates with your esteemed presence and scholarly inputs.

Dear Sir/Madam

Ever since its independence in 1947, India has been functioning as a responsible democracy. It has successfully adapted to the challenging situations. There have been free and fair periodic elections for all political offices from the panchayats to the President. The legislative, executive and judicial organs have been functioning properly. Revolutionary enactments like the Right to Information (RTI) Act 2005, Right to Education Act, 2009 and other welfare means have empowered the people. The mass media, including print and electronic, have full autonomy and play a key role in formulating and influencing public opinion. Significant social change has taken place in almost all walks of life and the nation is moving ahead on course of socio-economic development.

In spite of the significant achievements over the years, there are various challenges that the country faces in terms of fulfilment of expectations of various sections of society. When India celebrates its glorious 75 years of democracy which gained reputation all over the world, it is high time to look into the serious challenges it confronts such as corruption, poverty, gender discrimination, casteism, communalism, religious fundamentalism, regionalism, political violence, etc. The future of Indian democracy highly depends on how effectively we are able to tackle these challenges while sticking on to its acclaimed traditions.

The national seminar on "Indian Democracy at 75 years – The Way Forward" intends to revisit the achievements of Indian democracy, to discuss its shortcomings and to suggest policy measures to overcome them so that India will continue to remain an ideal democratic model for the rest of the world.
